Father's Joy is a Christian ministry dedicated to supporting families and prospective families of children with disabilities. Families getting the news that they have had or will have a child with a disability are generally overwhelmed, confused and distraught. Families are usually bombarded with negative information concerning their child's future and may feel as though there is no hope.

It is Father's Joy's mission to help parents see the blessing that God has given them in their child. To that end, since its inception in 2003, Father's Joy has provided the following programs and services:

- Distribution of positive brochures to families in hospitals and doctors' offices and through organizations and schools for children with and without disability
- Facilitation of Bible studies for families of children with disability
- Providing support and advice to educators and families in the U.S and other countries through mission trips
- Scholarship programs for individuals with disability seeking higher education and for families of children with disabilities attending The Rise School of Houston
- Presentation of advocacy workshops to educate parents regarding inclusion, special education and the school evaluation and IEP process
- Providing support and care packages for families with children undergoing treatment at Texas Children's Hospital

If you would like to speak with someone or would like copies of our brochure for distribution, please contact Kristin Tassin at (281) 630-2885.
